

2 Child Abuse

16 Child abuse is a terrible problem in the United States and in many countries 29 around the world. Child abuse comes in many forms, and causes problems for 40 kids as infants, toddlers, school-age children, adolescents, and young adults.
54 Child abuse even leaves scars, both physical and emotional, on adults that last a 55 lifetime.

69 Child abuse can be physical. Now, and in the past, children have been hit 84 by parents, as well as other adults they know. Children have been hit with open 97 hands, closed fists, with bats, belts, electrical cords, and other things. Besides the 110 physical, which leaves marks on the skin, children have suffered other forms of 111 abuse.

125 Emotional abuse is where children have been made to feel they are bad or 139 unwanted. Children have been abused with a lack of nutrition. This can be a 153 situation where a child is not given enough to eat. And more recently, some 169 children have been abused by being given too much to eat, or the wrong kinds of 176 food, like fast food and junk food.

189 Children have been forced to live in homes where parents abuse drugs and 202 alcohol. Children have been abused by what is called neglect, where the parents 218 pay so little attention to the child that the child is endangered or can even die.
235 Maybe you can see in your mind some cases of neglect: a child riding in a car
255 without a seatbelt, a child left in a locked car in a parking lot on a hot day, a child 266 left home alone, or a child whose emotional pain is ignored.

280 Taking good care of children is the most important thing an adult can do.
295 Adults need to be especially careful of what they do around children. Even if they 310 don't mean to, adults can abuse children by allowing them to see them do things 320 like smoking, drinking alcohol, abusing drugs, driving dangerously, swearing, and 334 disrespecting others. What children see adults they know do, they may very well 347 do themselves as they grow up. Adults should set good examples for children.